

Cindy Straub has been a dance instructor and a member of Ohio Dance Masters for more than 40 years. For the past 20 years, she has owned a well-respected dance studio, as well as a dance & theatre store. Cindy has trained professional dancers, including Rockettes and Broadway dancers during her career. Cindy is currently adjunct dance faculty at Otterbein University in Westerville, Ohio. Cindy comes from the world of professional dance and theatre. At age sixteen, she joined Actors' Equity Association, working with Tommy Tune in "Mack and Mabel." For nine seasons, she went on to dance with luminaries including Betty White in "Hello, Dolly!" and Billy Crystal in "Cabaret." Cindy loves musical theatre and has choreographed more than 75 musicals and industrials including working with Broadway producer Ric Wanetik. Cindy holds a degree in Communications from The Ohio State University having worked in all facets of news production including on-air talent, reporting and producing. Cindy loves the process of training young dancers and watching them grow and develop!